Health Check Camp

Organizing health check-up camps is a powerful way to sensitize students and employees to their responsibility for society's well-being. These camps provide convenient access to preventive healthcare services, promoting early detection of health issues and fostering a culture of proactive wellness. By prioritizing their own health through participation in these camps, individuals contribute to a healthier community and exemplify the importance of individual responsibility in creating a better society.

The university organizes regular health check-ups for girls to ensure their well-being.
